New England Mutual Life Ins.
Of Boston, Mass., Chartered in 1843.

Capital and accumulation, $650,000.

THIS Company is one of the oldest, and among the most prudently and successfully conducted in the country. The primary object in conducting its business has been to provide perfect security under all conceivable circumstances, for the payment of its losses under its policies, and to return to the insured the surplus at stated periods, and strict economy is observed.

Every insured person is a member of the company and shares in the profits of the business, and is subject to no liability or assessments beyond his premium.

The directors are required to be peculiarly interested in the company, and they give it their personal attention; and bonds of sufficient security are given by its officers for the faithful performance of their duties. Insurance may be effected for the benefit of the wife, which is secured to her by law beyond the reach of a husband's creditors; and creditors may insure the lives of debtors.

WILLIAM PHILLIPS, President; B. F. STEVEN, Sec'y; O. P. ROBINSON, Examining Physician. June 13th, 1854. 41

Highly Important to Farmers.

THE ONLY EXCLUSIVE FARMERS' INSURANCE COMPANY IN THE WEST.

LOCATED AT MADISON, WISCONSIN.

THIS Company continues to take risks upon Farm Property only, consisting of buildings of all kinds, (belonging to farmers), household furniture, grain in barns, live stock, &c., from one to five years, at lower rates than most other responsible companies.

All losses promptly paid at the office as soon as proof is made thereon.

We believe it to be for the interest of the farmers to insure by themselves, their property being less hazardous than any other, consequently you will have no losses only your own of the same class, and all will be on an equal footing.

Experience has shown that two-thirds, if not three-fourths of all the fires that occur in farm buildings, mills, shops and such like property. In this company all such property is rejected positively, by LETTING THEM ALONE.

Farmers, look to your own interest, and insure in a Farmers' Company.

We have been doing business a little over three years, and we have not been obliged to assess our premium notes, and for the last fourteen months we have not had a single dollar loss, though doing a large and prosperous business, which we believe to be without a parallel in the history of insurance.

The best of references given as to the responsibility of the company.

COTTAGE DAYS.

From the New York Evening Post.
Far in a deep and shaded vale,
Where winds are tremulous and clear, Stands the old cottage of my boy,
Wrapt in a thousand memories dear.
A thousand memories of the day
Of dreamy and untroubled ease,
When I was young, and walked with health
And hope among the hills and trees.
The floor is strewn with moss and fern,
And none the spider's web molest;
Yet still, far from the throng and clasp Of the great city, I am here, My fancy flies, like a torn bee,
To this sweet spot of rural peace.
To the green breath of morn, Just from the dewy dew-drops left,
And the soft song of early birds,
And the wild gleam of hawthorn light.
Or, musing 'neath the lattice porch,
Over-thatched with richly blossomed vine, I hear the distant tinkling bell, Or loving of well-pastured kine.
Then comes our Florian, hazel-eyed,
With spirit-like loveliness and grace,
To bless me with her converse sweet,
And perfumes the air with her sweet face.
And arm in arm, down the lane, Between old dusky lindens row, We fondly rove—till thick'ning shades Proclaim the long day's tranquil close.
O halcyon days, when life was given In gentle and Arcadian calm;
When I was met by sweetest friends, And felt her kindly, soothing balm.
When for my thirst she drew her wine, Fresh from each hillside's sparkling springs,
And found ambrosia in the lush Green orchard's autumn offerings.
When all the dewy flower-scented air Seemed burdened with a voiceless prayer,
And from the woody uplands rose,
The world's sweet praise every where.
Thus on my spirit visions throng,
Sweet memories of exceeding bliss,
Till in the dense wall'd daisy mart,
I feel a rural blessedness.

A Leaf from the Paris Registe.

I had once a long search to make among the register books of Chorley Parish. It extended over many years, and kept me poring, day after day, over the musty pages in the vestry room.
Abraham Stedman, the clerk—whom we all know very well in Chorley—kept me company all the while time; and in one of my mid-day pauses, when we were sharing some bread and cheese and beer over the fire, he told me the following passage in his life:
I have lived in the parish, said he, going on now for seventy years. When I think of past times, my present friends in the place seem strangers to me. Our old acquaintances die off one by one, and new ones come into their places so gradually, that we scarcely miss them; but one day we look round, and find that the world has passed into strange hands.
[At this point Abraham Stedman paused and looked at the vestry fire for a few moments; I was silent, waiting for him to proceed.]
The story I am going to tell you is wonderful enough, though there are no ghosts in it. I do not believe in ghosts. If any man ought to have seen ghosts, I ought; for I may say, without any offence to my kind friends of to-day, that all my trust and oldest friends are gone to the ghost-land; and I am sure they would go me a visit if they could. Besides, I never feared to walk about an old house in the dark at night or to go at that silent time through the churchyard where most of my friends lie or even into the church if I had occasion.
On Christmas eve—I cannot say exactly how many years ago it is now, but it was not very long after I was made clerk—the rector (that was poor Mr. Godby) told me he was in a little perplexity about the sexton's being ill, seeing that there would be no one to ring the bells.
Now I always made a point of setting up with the sexton on that night, and taking a hand at the bells; for I could not then pretty well, and it seemed to me only a little kindness, proper to the season, to offer to keep him company in such a lonely place. He was a much older man than I was, and I knew he was glad of my society.
We used to have a little fire up in the bell-tower, and make toast and posset an hour or two after midnight. But this time the sexton was ill, and I promised the rector at once that I would ring the bells; and so it was agreed that I should.
I used to offer my company to the old man because I knew that he was timid and a little superstitious; but, for myself, I did not mind at all going there alone. At exactly half past eleven, on that Christmas eve, I took all the church keys, and started from my house to fulfill my promise. It was very dark that night, and windy, and several of our old lamps had either dropped out for want of oil, or had been blown out by the gusts. I could not see any one in the street; but as I left my door I fancied that I heard footsteps a little way behind me. I should not have noticed it then, if it had not been that on several nights previously I had fancied that some person had secretly followed me, as I went about the town. I came up to a little band of carol singers soon after, and stood listening to them a minute or two. When I bade them a merry Christmas, I had forgotten about the footsteps.
It was striking the three-quarters as I passed over the stile into the churchyard; and just after that I caught a sound like the footsteps again.
I looked back and waited awhile; but I could hear nothing more. I was ashamed to walk back a little way, for I began to think that I was becoming a coward, and conjuring up things out of my fear. It was true that I fancied this before that night; but it had never troubled me till then, and so I did not doubt it was some superstitious feeling about my task that was at the bottom of it. "What object could any one have in following a poor man like me, night after
the pathway between the grave stones, humming an old ditty.
Now, though I had resolved to banish all thought of the supposed footsteps from my mind, I could not help turning half round as I stood with the great key in the lock, and looking about in the direction I had come. I own I was distracted then, for at about thirty yards I saw distinctly, as I believed, a dark head of a man peeping at me over the top of one of the tombstones. I stood in the shadow of the church porch, so that it would be difficult for any one at that distance to observe that I was looking that way. The tomb-stone was some way from the gravel path, and out of the line of any one passing through the church-yard, and indeed, as you know, no one would have occasion to pass through the church-yard unless he were going to church, like myself. I hesitated for a moment, and then walked briskly towards it; but the head seemed to withdraw itself immediately and disappear. What was more strange, I walked round the very stone, and could see no one near; nor could I hear any movement. A little further was another tomb-stone, somewhat higher and with a carved top, and I tried to persuade myself that it was this top coming to rest behind the other stone which had deceived me.
But this could not be; for stand how I would in the church porch, I could not bring the second tomb-stone exactly in a line with the first, so my eye. I felt a little uneasy at this strange fancy; but it would not do to go back, for it

D. Jerome, administrator of the above named es-

SATURDAY MORNING, AUG. 12, 1854.

When we suggested that Mr. Booth might have desired the interposition of the supreme court of this state in his behalf to enable him to evade an issue he would rather avoid, he resented the imputation with a good deal of feeling, and charged us with "hounding" him.
Yet notwithstanding he thus freely resents an imputation upon himself, he exhibits no reluctance to asperse the court which refused his application. He lets nothing in the way of a disapproval of the decision of the court pass without being republished in his paper, and even quotes with evident approbation the following paragraph from the Hartford Republican—a paper which can know nothing of the court or its decision more than that the court exists and the decision has been made. The italics in the closing sentence are as we find them in the Free Democrat.
"We are sorry to say that Mr. Booth was refused a writ of habeas corpus on his arrest for the third charge of aiding Glover to escape, and that the very court thus refusing, but a few days before decided the slave law unconstitutional. We have no doubt they will frame some hair-splitting legal excuse for their conduct, but fear that lack of courage is at the bottom of it."

Mr. Booth may be sincere in the belief that the security of the citizen and the welfare of the state are suffering in his person, and we are inclined to think he has worked himself into that conviction, but he seems to overlook the fact that one of the best means to secure respect for himself and confidence in his own integrity is to record something of the same character to others.

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in an incidental allusion to the Southern Wisconsin railroad says that the Milwaukee and Mississippi company have a large portion of the means already provided for its construction.

St. Louis Election.—In St. Louis county, Kenneth's (whig) maj. over Benton is about 1800. The Whigencer conjectures nine whig and nine Demo representatives are elected to the legislature.

In a "Fix."—The Grant County Herald, in a complimentary notice of the Madison Argus, drawn out by recent typographical improvement, says: "The party would be certain to sink without the Argus, and with it there is nothing less certain;" and thereupon adds,
"success to the Argus, politics and all." It strikes us either from the dilemma is a bad one for "the democracy."

FOREIGN INVESTMENT.—The New York Mirror of the 5th says that large orders from England have been received to buy American stocks on English account. The news of new defalcations had reached London, but produced little change and loss of confidence.

The receipts of the general government for the quarter ending the 30th of June were $16,884,739 $, and the expenditures for the same period were $23,748,102 34, including $6,832,765 $ paid on the public debt. At this rate the administration will soon be out of money.

A SAGE CONCLUSION.—The Washington Sentinel has at length come to the opinion that the supremacy of the democratic party is in jeopardy.

Benjamin H. Smith (whig.) is reported to have been elected to congress in Virginia to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon.
J. M. Smedgrass.

The Moore Sentinel pays some of our neighbors well deserved compliment. It says:
"The appropriation of $50,000 by congress for a custom house, post office and U. S. court rooms, for a building 60 by 45 feet, and 48 feet from foundation. For contingent expenses, $5000 here is added."

ARRESTED.—Uncle sheriff Conover, arrived here on the ears yesterday morning, having in charge a man named Gaylord Blair whom he arrested at Allen's Grove, Walworth county, for refusing obedience to decree in chancery, requiring him to pay a certain sum of money to his sister. It appears that between 20 and 30 years ago, in the state of New York, Mr.
Blair was appointed executor of his father's estate, and this heir claimant she has not been paid the full amount due, while Mr. Blair asserts that he received his share years ago.— Blair is now in jail, and his counsel, Mr. Arnold, is endeavoring to procure his release.—Free Democrat.

LARGE RAFT.—A raft of timber containing 600,000 feet, arrived at the lake at Alton, on Friday. About half of it consisted of fencing and flooring which has of late been in great demand. It was floated from Appleton Falls, Wisconsin.

A fellow once handed a shillings had found in a room which he was cleaning, the owner, and he was told to "keep it for his honesty."
A few days afterwards he was asked if he had found a valuable ring, and he said he had, but had kept it for his honesty.

GOOD SCHULDRING ON THE OTHER SIDE.
—A great mercantile fraud has been discovered in London, similar in character to that of Schuyler in New York, and to about the same amount.
Forged gold warrants to the extent of £400,000 have been detected, upon which money has been previously borrowed. Several of the London mercantile houses have failed in consequence.

APPLYING SCRIPTURE.—The following is good enough to be true, though it probably is not:
Rev. Dr. Hawks, it is said, was alone time elected bishop of Rhode Island, but he declined the appointment, the ground for refusal being the meagre salary assigned to the office. His Rhode Island friends reminded him of a promise made in the scriptures—that "God would feed the young ravens." The doctor replied
seen a promise to feed young Hawks.

KILLED BY A LYNX.—We learn that an Indian woman was killed in broad daylight by an animal known as the lynx, within three or four miles of Tomah county, sometime last week.

She had gone out from camp some distance to bring in some venison when an Indian had dressed and hung up, when returning with the meat on her shoulder the ferocious beast sprang on her back, and though she threw the venison as far from her as she could, in order to divert the attention of the lynx it did not leave her until it had destroyed her life.—Saginaw Enterprise.

WHITEWATER.—The following is the amount of produce and merchandise shipped from Whitewater during the first 19 days of July just passed:
19,360 bus. oats, 5,444 bus. corn, 415 bus. wheat, 45 bus. rye, 5000 feet of lumber, 66 bbls. high wines, 4,000 lbs. paper bags, 16 hides, 6 pows, 4 serapers, 1 ear load and 1 bx. earthen ware, 68 sacks and 4 bbls. flour. Also many other things too numerous to particularize.

A SENSIBLE WILL.—The following is the copy of a will left by a man who chose to be his own lawyer:
"This is the last will and testament of me, John Thomas. I give all my things to my relations, to be divided amongst them the best way they can.
N. B.—If anybody kicks up a row, or makes any fuss about it, he is not to have anything."
Signed by me. JOHN THOMAS.

THE ONLY EXCLUSIVE FARMERS' INSURANCE COMPANY IN THE WEST.

THE MADISON MUTUAL.
LOCATED AT MADISON, WISCONSIN.

THIS Company continues to take risks upon Farm Property only, consisting of buildings of all kinds, including barns, household furniture, grain in barns, live stock, &c., from one to five years, at lower rates than most other responsible companies. All losses promptly paid at the office as soon as proof is made thereon.

We believe it to be for the interest of the farmers to insure by themselves, their property being less hazardous than any other, consequently you will have no losses only your own of the same class, and all will be on an equal footing.

Experience has shown that two-thirds, if not three-fourths of all the fires that occur upon stores, barns, houses, mills, etc., are caused by carelessness, and all such property is rejected positively, by letting them alone.

Farmers, look to your own interest, and insure in a Farmers' Company.

We have been doing business a little over three years, and we have not been obliged to assess our premium notes, and for the last fourteen months we have not had a single dollar loss, though doing a large and prosperous business, which we believe to be without a parallel in the history of insurance.

The best of references given as to the responsibility of the company.

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

HEALTH OF CHICAGO.—The board of health, report 28 deaths at Chicago on Monday, of which 16 were from cholera. The Tribune says that travel to and from that city is on the increase again and public health improving.

DEATH OF A RAILROAD CONTRACTOR.—Mr. D. Camp, of the firm of Camp & Gibbons, contractors on the Lake Shore railroad, died at Waukegan on Monday afternoon of cholera. The deceased was one of the oldest settlers of Cleveland, and his remains were forwarded thither on Tuesday by the steamer Buckeye State.

Holden, Kemp & Co. of Janesville, are among the most enterprising dealers in the state; they deal extensively and keep a large assortment of first quality goods in their line. They sell reasonably and the people of Green County going to Janesville had better give them a call. Their advertisements will be found in to-day's paper.

The Alta California states that as a heavily loaded cart was recently passing down Jackson street, in San Francisco, the street plank gave way, and the cart disappeared suddenly into the depths below. Upon examination, it was found that the supporters of the plank beneath had been bored through in many places by some mischievous individuals, who had obtained access there by aid of boats. The Alta California thinks there is no doubt that the perpetrators of the plot had designed to rob the specie cart, on its way to the steamer, and for this purpose had weakened the supports, intending, when the cart fell through, to be prepared with a conveyance beneath, and seizing their booty, to decamp with all possible speed.

A little over eighteen months since, the city of New York sold a block of land on 15th Avenue for $160,000; now they propose to buy it back for "the people" for $320,000, with 6 per cent. interest from June 20th, 1854. What do "the people" think of such management. There is a pretty little fortune hid in that meal bag for somebody. We hope it will be shook out just to gratify public curiosity.

A bachelor friend of ours passing up street yesterday picked up a thimble. He stood for a moment meditating on the probable owner, when pressing it to his lips, he said:

"O, that it were the fair lips of the wearer." Just as he had finished, a big, fat, ugly, black wench looked out of an upper window and said:

"Boss, jiss please to frow dat fumble in de entry. I jis drap it!"
Our friend fainted.

The Union contains another article on the subject of our relations with Spain. It says Spain is at the present moment in constant danger of French and English intrigues, and that fact should make her act promptly in giving to the United States reparation which is her just due. By doing so, she will secure our friendly aid, the United States being deeply opposed to all foreign dictation in the domains of Queen Isabella.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11th.
Five thousand dollars was the recent defalcation in the U. S. mint in this city.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11th.

United States steamer Empire City from Aspinwall arrived this forenoon with 400 passengers and $1,072,059 in specie. Her San Francisco dates are to the 16th. Her news has been anticipated by the Star of the West. Our Panama papers are to August 3d. The Aspinwall Courier is inclined to endorse the action of the American government in the bombardment of Greytown, and hopes it will be accepted by the American people as an earnest that the government is reviving foreign policy which caused her to be respected in the days of her infancy.

A guard has been placed on the mule road to hereafter protect passengers passing over it.—Rain has fallen at Panama for several weeks. Sickness on the Isthmus is on the increase.

The following is the report of the cholera to-day at the Franklin hospital: Ten cases, five deaths, two remaining in the hospital. Mott street hospital—eleven cases, seven deaths, remaining, two.

THE BOSTON STORE.

Let the Horn be Blown!!

"Sound the loud trumpet o'er land and o'er sea," "WHEELLOCK'S triumph, and ever shall be."

THIS is the middle of the nineteenth century, the first half of which has produced more change and upward movement than any fifty years of our Christian Era.

The great controlling power of this age is its commerce—indeed, this may be truly called the commercial age.

It has been well said by an ancient writer that "Man wants but little here below," and to supply those wants

WHEELLOCK

Announces to every people and every tongue, to both sexes and all parties, to all factions of all gauges, that finding his store entirely

He has over

10,000 Yards of Silk Barges, of every style and price, and it is with no great difficulty that the fair dames of this fair valley can select

FROM THE ONE THOUSAND PIECES,

Of all the latest fashions from ST. LOUIS, N. Y. Per Yard to Twenty-Eight Cents, such dresses as will add to their exquisite beauty, though it may as a general thing be as difficult to add to that beauty as it is to find refined gold, paint the lily, or add perfume to the violet.

It must not be inferred that we offer only these and the many other articles for outer apparel, such as Chamois and Foulard Silks, but all manner of

are on change, so that every one may be entirely accommodated with every article of female apparel.—Eved French Red faced Gaiters, and do do do do

And all the articles manufactured of the best styles.—So that of this store, so far as articles which adorn La Belle sex are concerned, it may be truly said

"CUSTOM cannot rule the infant's caprice."

While the Boston Store has made provision to protect the feet, it can also boast that it has all sorts of by which hands can be protected and retain "The white wonder of fair Juliet's hand."

And in taking leave of those of whom it is no exaggeration to say they are the Nonpareils of beauty, the Paragons of perfection, Mr. Wheelock assures his fair customers that his assistants and auxiliaries are those who unite great knowledge of the business, fine personal presence and affability of manner to a determination to discharge conscientiously their several and respective duties;—that while they may have the proper desire to effect sales, they will never in imitation of many of our contemporaries attempt to reach that object by equivocation, misrepresentation, exaggeration, tergiversation, fabrication, or by direct lying.

And now to the wants of the

Can, at lower rates of exchange than any other establishment west of the Alleghany mountains, furnish that class of exchanges so that riches will fill their pockets as water fills the sea. And to them we offer

DOMESTIC LAMPS, REFRIGERATORS, CLOTHES, CASSIMERES, DOESKINS AND VESTINGS, of English, French and American manufacture.

This establishment is now, as usual, the favorite place of resort for the fashionable, the Cutting Department still being under my own personal supervision, and warranted to suit the most difficult, twenty per cent lower than any other establishment in the State.

No Fit, No Sale, is my doctrine.

You ask how I can do this; I will tell you: From my long experience in this business, and being a practical Tailor, I know when, where and how to buy my Goods for them, and how to cut them, not mind of having to secure the services of an eminent artist, at a salary of $1,000 to $1,500 a year, which the purchaser must pay for—this is the secret. COTTAGE DAYS.

Far in a deep and shaded vale,
Where winds a strenuous and clear, Stands the old cottage of my heart, Wreath in a thousand memories dear.

A thousand memories of the days Of dreary and untrodden ease,
And hope among the hills and trees.

Moss grows on the cracking door, Within, the shadows mould their nests;
The floor is strewn with russet leaves,
And none the spider's web molest.

Yet still, far from the throng and clash Of the great city's trampled streets, My fancy flies, like a lone bee,
To this rude haunt of rural sweets.

Again I quaff the breath of morn, Just freshening among the dune-dipt hills;
And list the song of early birds,
And the wild gleam of beaming hills.

Or, musing 'neath the lattice porch,
Over-blushed with richly blossomed vine, I hear the distant tinkling fold, Or lowing of well-pastured kine.

Then comes our Florian, hazel-eyed,
With spirit-like loveliness and grace,
To bless me with her converse sweet,
And perfect lily-fushion face.

And arm in arm, across the lane, Between old dusky linden rows, We fondly rove—till thickening shades Proclaim the long day's tranquil close.

In gentle and Arcadian calm;
When I was merry contentment guest,
And for my kindly something balm.

When for my third she drew her wine, Fresh from each hillside sparkling spring,
Green orchard's autumn offerings.

When all the dewy flower-scented sod Seemed burdened with a voiceless prayer,
And from the woody uplands rose,
The world's sweetest and truest where.

Thus on my spirit visions throng,
Sweet memories of exceeding bliss,
Till in the dusk, with daisy mart,

A Leaf from the Paris Register.

I had once a long search to make among the register books of Chancel Parish. It extended over many years, and kept me poring, day after day, over the dusty pages in the vestry room. Abraham Stedman, the clerk—whom we all know very well in Chancel—kept me company all the while; and in one of my mid-day pauses, when we were sharing some bread and cheese and beer over the fire, he told me the following passage in his life:

I have lived in the parish, said he, going on now for seventy years. When I think of past times, my present friends in the place seem strangers to me. Our old acquaintances die off one by one, and new ones come into their places so gradually, that we scarcely miss them; but one day we look round, and find that the world has passed into strange hands.

The story I am going to tell you is wonderful enough, though there are no ghosts in it. I do not believe in ghosts. If any man ought to have seen ghosts, I ought; for I may say, without any offence to my kind friends of to-day, that all my trust and oldest friends are gone to the ghost-land; and I am sure they would pay me a visit if they could. Besides, I never feared to walk about an old house in the dark at night, or to go at that silent time through the churchyard where most of my friends lie or even into the church if I had occasion.

On Christmas eve—I cannot say exactly how many years ago it is now, but it was not very long after I was made clerk—the rector (that was poor Mr. Godby) told me he was in a little perplexity about the sexton's being ill, seeing that there would be no one to ring the bells. Now I always made a point of setting up with the sexton on that night, and taking a hand at the bells; for I could ring them pretty well, and it seemed to me only a little kindness, proper to the season, to offer to keep him company in such a lonely place. He was a much older man than I was, and I knew he was glad of my society. We used to have a little fire up in the belfry, and make toast and posset an hour or two after midnight. But this time the sexton was ill, and I promised the rector at once that I would ring the bells; and so it was agreed that I should.

I used to offer my company to the old man because I knew that he was timid and a little superstitious; but, for myself, I did not mind at all going there alone. At exactly half-past eleven, on that Christmas eve, I took all the church keys, and started from my house to fulfill my promise. It was very dark that night, and windy, and several of our old lamps had either dropped out for want of oil, or had been blown out by the gusts. I could not see any one in the street; but as I left my door I fancied that I heard footsteps a little way behind me. I should not have noticed it then, if it had not been that on several nights previously I had fancied that some person had secretly followed me, as I went about the town. I came up to a little band of carol singers soon after, and stood listening to them a minute or two. When I bade them a merry Christmas, I had forgotten about the footsteps. It was striking the three-quarters as I passed over the stile into the churchyard; and just after that I caught a sound like the footsteps again. I looked back and waited awhile; but I could hear nothing more. I was ashamed to walk back a little way, for I began to think that I was becoming a coward, and conjuring up things out of my fear. It was true that I fancied this before that night; but it had never troubled me till then, and so I did not doubt it was some superstitious feeling about my task that was at the bottom of it. "What object could any one have in following a poor man like me, night after night?" I asked myself. So I went on through the pathway between the grave stones, humming an old ditty.

Now, though I had resolved to banish all thought of the supposed footsteps from my mind, I could not help turning half round as I stood with the great key in the lock, and looking about in the direction I had come. I own I was frightened then, for at about thirty yards I saw distinctly, as I believed, the dark head of a man peeping at me over the top of one of the tombstones. I stood in the shadow of the church porch, so that it would be difficult for any one at that distance to observe that I was looking that way. The tombstone was some way from the gravel path, and out of the line of any one passing through the church-yard, and indeed, as you know, no one would have occasion to pass through the church-yard unless he were going to church, like myself. I hesitated for a moment, and then walked briskly towards it; but the head seemed to withdraw itself immediately and disappear. What was more strange, I walked round the very stone, and could see no one near; nor could I hear any movement. A little further was another tombstone, somewhat higher and with a curved top, and I tried to persuade myself that it was this top coming close behind the other stone which had deceived me. But this could not be; for stand how I would in the church porch, I could not bring the second tombstone exactly in a line with the first, to my eye. I felt a little uneasy at this strange fancy; but it would not do to go back, for it was near twelve, and I had promised the rector to be in the belfry ready to ring out a peal on the stroke of midnight. So I opened the door quickly, closed it behind me, and walked feeling my way down the aisle.

I was quite in the dark, for my lantern was in the vestry room, and I kept a tinder box and matches there to light it. I had to grope about for the key hole of the heavy iron-plated door, and again to fumble among my bunch of keys and again to fumble among my bunch of keys to find the right one. I am not a man of weak nerve; but a strange sensation came over me as I stood there in the dark, feeling through all the belfry for the key. The air of the church was close, and had a faint smell of mouldering leather such as you smell in some libraries. I believe it made me feel faint, for just then, I had so strong a dizziness in my eyes that I seemed to hear the bells already beginning to peal forth in the hollowly listened and fancied that I could hear distinctly that confused jangle which precedes a full peal. The fancy terrified me for the moment, for I knew that I had seen the sexton ill in bed that day, and even that he could not be there, unless he had got the key from me. But when this notion had passed I set it down for another invention of mine, and began to think the tombstone affair no more worthy of belief than this. So I turned the great key with both hands; and opening the great iron proof door, I let myself into the vestry room.

When I was once in there I knew where to find my lantern and tinder box in a moment. I always kept them on the second shelf from the ground, in the closet just below where the plan of the parish estate at East Haydock hung up framed and glazed. But the paviour opened his drawers and brushes there also, and we used to have words about her throwing my things out of order sometimes. This time I found that she had scattered my matches, and I had to stoop down and feel about for them among all the things at the bottom of the closet, which took some time. When I found them I struck a light and blew the tinder with my breath. I saw the sexton do exactly the same thing one night as I stood in the dark, right at the end of the aisle, and his face reflected the fire at every puff, and looked quite devilish as it shone out strongly and faded away again. I mention this because I have thought of it since, and believe it had something to do with what befell me that night. I lighted my candle and shut it up in the lantern. It gave a very weak light, and the sides of the lantern were of thick, yellow horn, very dirty and dusty with lying in the closet; for I rarely had occasion to go into the church after dark.

Swinging this lantern, then, in one hand, and holding wood under the other arm to light my fire with, I went up the steps again into the dark side aisle. Just at that moment, and as I was shutting the vestry room door, I suddenly felt a heavy hand laid upon my arm. I started and cried, "who's there?" The lantern fell, so that the light went out. Nobody answered; but some one immediately held me from behind, trying to keep back my arms with extraordinary strength. I was not a weak man, although I am short; but I struggled long to get round and face my enemy, and just as I was getting a little more free, another one came to his assistance. I called aloud for help, but they stifled my mouth with something—swore if I called they would shoot me through the head. Upon this they bound my arms tightly, and led me back to the vestry room, where I sat on a chair while they lighted a candle they had with them.

MORE BLOODSHED.—Through the politeness of P. Colwell, esq., express agent, who arrived from St. Louis last night at 10 o'clock, we are furnished with the Intelligence of Wednesday morning, from which we obtain the following particulars of a second riot Tuesday night:

When the passengers, arrived by last night's train, left St. Louis at 7 o'clock yesterday morning the fighting had again ceased, but the most intense excitement prevailed, and more serious encounters were expected to occur last night, than had previously taken place.

Twenty were reported killed during Tuesday night. The Irish were pouring in from the surrounding country, and the general impression prevailed that sanguinary and horrible scenes were to be enacted when darkness again settled over the city.

At about 11 o'clock last night a collision took place on Green, near the corner of Sixth street, between a party of Americans and Irishmen, resulting in the death of one man and the wounding of six or seven others.

From persons who were on the ground at the time, we learn that a party of Americans were moving out Green street, with the apparent intention of mischief, when they were fired upon by a body of Irishmen collected at the corner of the street.

So far as could be ascertained there were seven wounded and one killed, as we have given above, although the rumors current stated the number much greater. Capt. Blackburn of the Continentals, and one or two privates of his company received slight wounds. The military did not arrive until after the firing ceased, when, to frighten off rioters who might be lurking around, they fired a volley or two.

When we left the ground, at 12 o'clock, quiet prevailed in that immediate vicinity, but in other parts of the city yells and reports of fire arms were to be heard.

LATER.—ONE O'CLOCK. A. M.—A report has just reached our office that the fighting is still going on. A dense crowd is collected at the corner of Ninth and Middle streets. Firing has been done there, and E. R. Violet, a well known iron merchant of this city, was murdered. There is no doubt about the death of this gentleman—eye-witnesses inform us that he was walking along the street with another citizen, when he was shot down. Mr. V. has been taken to his hotel a stiffened corpse. The firing came from a house on the corner of Middle and Ninth sts.

The man who it is supposed shot Mr. Violet was arrested and taken to the calaboose. A large horse pistol was found in his possession, and about two pounds of powder and ball.

He gave his name as Timothy Lydon, an Irishman.

At the corner of Broadway and Ashley streets, two men were shot down at 1 o'clock. One we understand is John Foley, lieutenant of the night police, and the other a Mr. Snyder, a coffee house keeper of the sixth ward—Snyder is dead, and Foley it is thought cannot live. Several others were badly hurt at that point. We know not where this thing is to end. While we write at half past one o'clock, the fire-bells are tolling, and the streets are filled with excited citizens. Policemen are "rapping" in every direction. Riot and bloodshed is the order of the night—what the day may bring forth we dare not say.—Chicago Daily Press, Thursday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.

The people of Greytown have returned to the site of the destroyed settlement, and are preparing to resume, so far as is practicable, their former occupations. The British ship of war B-plague is now at that port. It appears to be a fact that the place has been put under martial law, and the government of Greytown is to be re-established under British protection.

When we suggested that Mr. Booth might have desired the interposition of the supreme court of this state in his behalf to enable him to evade an issue he would rather avoid, he resented the imputation with a good deal of feeling, and charged us with "boasting" him. Yet notwithstanding he thus freely resents an imputation upon himself, he exhibits no reluctance to asperse the court which refused his application. He lets nothing in the way of a disapproval of the decision of the court pass without being republished in his paper, and even quotes with evident approbation the following paragraph from the Hartford Republican—a paper which can know nothing of the court or its decision more than that the court exists and the decision has been made. The italics in the closing sentence are as we find them in the Free Democrat.

"We are sorry to say that Mr. Booth was refused a writ of habeas corpus on his arrest for the third charge of aiding Glover to escape, and that the very court thus refusing, but a few days before decided the slave law unconstitutional. We have no doubt they will frame some hair-splitting legal excuse for their conduct, but that lack of courage is at the bottom of it."

Mr. Booth may be sincere in the belief that the security of the citizen and the welfare of the state are suffering in his person, and we are inclined to think he has worked himself into that conviction, but he seems to overlook the fact that one of the best means to secure respect for himself and confidence in his own integrity is to accord something of the same character to others.

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in an incidental allusion to the Southern Wisconsin railroad, says that the Milwaukee and Mississippi company have a large portion of the means already provided for its construction.

St. Louis Election.—In St. Louis county, Kennett's (whig) maj. over Benton is about 1800. The Intelligencer conjectures nine whig and nine Benton representatives are elected to the legislature.

In a "Fix."—The Grant County Herald, in a complimentary notice of the Madison Argus, drawn out by its recent typographical improvement, says: "The party would be certain to sink without the Argus, and with it there is nothing less certain," and thereupon adds, "success to the Argus, politics and all." It strikes us either horn of the dilemma is a bad one for "the democracy."

FOREIGN INVESTMENT.—The New York Mirror of the 5th says that large orders from England have been received by American stocks on English account. The news of new deflections had reached London, but produced little change and no loss of confidence.

The receipts of the general government for the quarter ending the 30th of June were $16,551,739 86, and the expenditures for the same period were $23,745,102 34, including $6,892,765 17 paid on the public debt. At this rate the administration will soon be out of money.

A SAGE CONSIDERATION.—The Washington Sentinel has at length come to the opinion that the supremacy of the democratic party is in jeopardy.

Benjamin H. Smith (whig.) is reported to have been elected to congress in Virginia to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. John D. Snodgrass.

The Monroe Sentinel pays some of our neighbors a well deserved compliment. It says:

The appropriation of $50,000 by congress for a custom house, post office and U. S. court rooms, is for a building 60 by 45 feet, and 48 feet from the foundation. For contingent expenses, $50,000 more is added.

ARRESTED.—Under sheriff Conover, arrived here on the cars yesterday morning, having in charge a man named Gaylord Blair whom he arrested at Allen's Grove, Walworth county, for refusing obedience to a decree in chancery, requiring him to pay over a certain sum of money to his sister. It appears that between 20 and 30 years ago, in the state of New York, Mr. Blair was appointed executor of his father's estate, and this heir claims that she has not been paid the full amount due her, while Mr. Blair asserts that she received her share years ago. Blair is now in jail, and his counsel, Mr. Arnold, is endeavoring to procure his release.—Free Democrat.

LARGE RAFT.—A raft of lumber containing 600,000 feet, arrived at the levee at Alton, on Friday. About half of it consisted of fencing and flooring which has of late been in great demand. It was floated from Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

A FELLOW ONCE HANDED a shilling he had found in a room which he was cleaning, to the owner, and he was told to "keep it for his honesty."

A few days afterwards he was asked if he had found a valuable ring, and he said he had, but had kept it for his honesty.

GOOD SCHUTZLING ON THE OTHER SIDE.—A great mercantile fraud has been discovered in London, similar in character to that of Schuyler in New York, and to about the same amount. Forged dock warrants to the extent of £400,000 have been detected, upon which money has been previously borrowed. Several of the London mercantile houses have fallen in consequence.

APPLYING SCRIPTURE.—The following is good enough to be true, though it probably is not: Rev. Dr. Hawks, it is said, was at one time elected bishop of Rhode Island, but he declined the appointment, the ground for refusal being the meagre salary assigned to the office. His Rhode Island friends reminded him of the promise made in the scriptures—that, "God would feed the young ravens." The doctor replied that this was true, but that he had no where seen a promise to feed young Hawks.

KILLED BY A LYNX.—We learn that an Indian woman was killed in broad daylight by an animal known as the lynx, within three or four miles of Tuscola county, sometime last week. She had gone out from camp some distance to bring in some venison which an Indian had dressed and hung up, when returning with the meat on her shoulder the ferocious beast sprang on her back, and though she threw the venison as far from her as she could, in order to divert the attention of the lynx it did not leave her until it had destroyed her life.—Saginaw Enterprise.

WHITEWATER.—The following is the amount of produce and merchandise shipped from Whitewater during the first 15 days of July just passed:

10,360 bus. oats, 5,444 bus. corn, 415 bus. wheat, 45 bus. rye, 5000 bush of flounder, 66 bbls. high wines, 4,000 lbs. paper bags, 16 hides, 6 plows, 4 scrapers, 1 car load and 1 bx. earthen ware, 58 sacks and 4 bbls. flour. Also many other things too numerous to particularize.

A SENSIBLE WILL.—The following is the copy of a will left by a man who chose to be his own lawyer:

"This is the last will and testament of me, John Thomas. I give all my things to my relations, to be divided amongst them the best way they can."

N. B.—If anybody kicks up a row, or makes any fuss about it, he is not to have anything.

Of Boston, Mass., Chartered in 1843, Capital and accumulation, $650,000.

THIS Company is one of the oldest, and among the most gradually and successfully conducted in the country. The primary object in conducting its business has been to provide perfect security under all conceivable circumstances, for the payment of its losses under its policies, and to return to the insured the surplus at stated periods, and strict economy is observed.

Every person is a member of the company and shares in the profits of the business, and is subject to no liability or assessments beyond its premium.

Insurance may be effected for the benefit of the wife, which is secured to her by law beyond the reach of a husband's creditors; and creditors may insure the lives of debtors.

Highly Important to Farmers.

THE MADISON MUTUAL,

LOCATED AT MADISON, WISCONSIN.

THIS Company continues to take risks upon Farm Property only, consisting of buildings of all kinds, (belonging to farmers,) household furniture, grain in barns, live stock, &c., from one to five years, at lower rates than most other responsible companies.

All losses promptly paid at the office as soon as proof is made thereon.

We believe it to be for the interest of the farmers to insure by themselves, their property being less hazardous than that of any other company, and consequently you will have no losses only your own of the same class, and all will be on an equal footing.

Experience has shown that two-thirds, if not three-fourths of all the fires that occur are upon stores, taverns, mills, shops and such like property. In this case, your all your property is rejected positively, by LATER THAN A LATER.

Farmers, look to your own interest, and insure in a Farmers' Company.

We have been doing business a little over three years, and we have not been obliged to issue any premium notes, and for the last four months we have not had a single dollar loss, though doing a large and prosperous business, which we believe to be without a parallel in the history of insurance.

The best of references given as to the responsibility of the company.

HEALTH OF CHICAGO.—The board of health, report 38 deaths on Monday, of which 16 were from cholera. The Tribune says that travel to and from this city is on the increase again and public health improving.

DEATH OF A RAILROAD CONTRACTOR.—Mr. D. Camp, of the firm of Camp & Gibbons, contractors on the Lake Shore railroad, died at Waukegan on Monday afternoon of cholera. The deceased was one of the oldest settlers of Cleveland, and his remains were forwarded thither on Tuesday by the steamer Buckeye State.

Holden, Kemp & Co. of Janesville, are among the most enterprising dealers in the state; they deal extensively and keep a large assortment of first quality of goods in their line. They sell reasonably and the people of Green County going to Janesville had better give them a call. Their advertisements will be found in to-day's paper.

The Alta California states that as a heavily loaded cart was recently passing down Jackson street, in San Francisco, the street plank gave way, and the cart disappeared suddenly into the depths below. Upon examination, it was found that the supporters of the plank beneath had been bored through in many places by some mischievous individuals, who had obtained access there by aid of boats. The Alta California thinks there is no doubt that the perpetrators of the plot had designed to rob the specie cart, on its way to the steamer, and for this purpose had weakened the supports, intending, when the cart fell through, to be prepared with a conveyance beneath, and, seizing their booty, to decamp with all possible speed.

A little over eighteen months since, the city of New York sold a block of land on 18th Avenue for $160,000; now they propose to buy it back for "the people" for $320,000, with 6 per cent. interest from June 20th, 1854. What do "the people" think of such management. There is a pretty little fortune hid in that meal bag for somebody. We hope it will be shook out just to gratify public curiosity.

A bachelor friend of ours passing up street yesterday picked up a thimble. He stood for a moment meditating on the probable owner, when pressing it to his lips, he said: "O, that it were the fair lips of the wearer." Just as he had finished, a big, fat, ugly, black wench looked out of an upper window and said: "Boss, jis please to frow dat thimble in de entry. Jis drap it!" Our friend flinched.

BOSS, jis please to frow dat thimble in de entry. Jis drap it!

Far in a deep and shaded vale,
Where a streamlet flows clear,
Stands the old cottage of my boy,
Wrapt in a thousand memories dear.

A thousand memories of the day,
Of dreamy and untroubled ease,
When I was young, and walked in health,
And lope among the hills and trees.

How often on the evening hour,
When the moon shone on the hill,
The floor is strewn with "washed" leaves,
And none the speaker's words will heed.

Yet still, far from the bustling street,
Of the great city's throng and din,
My fancy flies, like a bird of prey,
To the old home of my boyhood's dream.

A Leaf from the Paris Register.

I had once a long search to make among the register books of Chislehurst. It extended over many years, and kept me pining, day after day, over the dusty pages in the vestry room.
Abraham Steadman, the clerk—whom we all know very well in Chislehurst—kept me company all the while; and in one of my mid-day
following passage in his life:

one by one, and new ones come into their places so gradually, that we scarcely miss them; but one
passed into strange hands.

"[At this point Abraham Steadman paused and

have seen ghosts, I ought; for I may say, without any offence to my kind friends to-day, that all my trust and oldest friends are gone to the ghost-land; and I am sure they would pay
to walk about an old house in the dark at midnight or to go at that silent time through the churchyard where most of my friends lie or even

many years ago it is now, but it was not very
long after I was made clerk—the rector (that
little perplexity about the sexton's being ill, seeing that there would be no one to ring the bells.
Now I always had a point of getting up with the sexton on a night, and taking a hand at the bells; for I could then pretty well, and it seemed to me only a little kindness, proper to the season, to offer to keep him company in such a lonely place. He was a much older man than
I was, and I knew he was glad of my society.
tower, and make toast and posset an hour or two
after midnight. But this time the sexton was ill, and I promised the rector at once that I would ring the bells; and so it was agreed that I should.

because I knew that he was timid and a little superstitious; but, for myself, I did not mind at all going there alone. At exactly half past eleven,
the gales. I could not see any one in the street;
but as I left my door I fancied that I heard foot-
Christmas, I had forgotten about the footsteps.
ter that I caught a sound like the footsteps again.
superstitious feeling about my task that was at the bottom of it. "What object could any one have
pathway between the grave stones, humming an old ditty.

Now, though I had resolved to banish all
thought of the supposed footsteps from my mind,
with the great key in the lock, and looking
frightened of them, for at about thirty yards I saw distinctly, as I believed, a dark figure of a man peeping at me over the top of one of the tomb-
porch, so that it would be difficult for any one
passing through the church-yard, and indeed, as you know, no one would have occasion to pass through the church-yard unless he were going to church, like myself. I hesitated for a moment, and then walked briskly towards it; but
near; nor could I hear any movement. A little
suade myself that it was this top coming close behind the other stone which had deceived me.
in the church porch, I could not bring the second tomb-stone exactly in a line with the first, to my eye. I felt a little uneasy at this strange sight; but it would not do to go back, for it

I was quite in the dark, for my lantern was in the vestry room, and I kept a tinder box and matches there to light it. I had to grope about for the key hole of the heavy iron door, and again to fumble among my bunch of keys, and again to find the right one. I am not a man of weak nerve; but a strange sensation came over me as I stood there in the dark, feeling through all the latches for the key. The air of the church was close, and had a faint smell of mouldering leather such as you smell in some libraries. I believe it made me feel faint; for just then, I had so strong a tingling in my ears that I seemed to hear the bells already beginning to peal forth in the belfry. I listened and fancied that I could hear distinctly that confused jingle which precedes a full peal. The fancy terrified me for the moment, for I knew that I had seen the sexton ill in bed that day, and even that he could not rise, unless he had got the key from me.
But, when this notion had passed I set it down for another invention of mine, and began to think the tomb-stone still more worthy of belief than this. So I turned the great key with both hands, and opening the great fire proof door, I flung myself into the vestry room.

When I was once in there I knew where to go, my lantern and tinder box in a moment. I always kept them on the second shelf from the top, in the closet just behind where the plan of the parish estate at East Haydock hung up from and glazed. But the pew opener kept her fingers and brushes there also, and we used to have a little quarrel about her throwing my things out of the closet. This time I found that she had scattered my matches, and I had to stoop down and feel about for them among all the things at the bottom of the closet, which took some time. When I found them I struck a light and lit my tinder with my breath. I saw the sexton do exactly the same thing one night as I stood in the dark, right at the end of the aisle, and his face reflected the fire at every pull, and looked quite livid as he stooped and strongly faded away again. I mention this because I have thought of it since, and believe it had something to do with what befell me that night. I lighted my candle and shut it up in the lantern. It gave a very weak light, and the sides of the lantern were of thick, yellow glass, very dirty and dusty, with lying in the closet; for I rarely had occasion to go into the church after dark.

Swinging this lantern, then, in one hand, and holding in the other my tinder and lighted fire, I went up the steps again into the dark side aisle. Just at that moment, and as I was shutting the vestry room door, I suddenly felt a heavy hand laid upon my arm. I started and cried, "who's there?" The lantern fell, so that the light went out. "Nobody answered; but some one immediately held me from behind, trying to keep back my arms with extraordinary strength. I was not a weak man, although I am short; but I struggled long to get round and face my enemy, and just as I was getting a little more free, another one came to his assistance. I called aloud for help, but they stuffed my mouth with something—swore if I called they would shoot me through the head. Upon this they bound my arms tightly, and led me back to the vestry room, where I sat on a chair while they lighted a candle they had with them.

More Bloomsbury.—Through the politeness of P. Colwell, esq., express agent, who arrived from St. Louis last night at 10 o'clock, we are furnished with the Intelligence of Wednesday morning, from which we obtain the following particulars of a second riot Tuesday night:

When the passengers arrived by last night's train, left St. Louis at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, the fighting had again ceased, but the most intense excitement prevailed, and more serious
than had previously taken place.

Twenty were reported killed during Tuesday night. The Irish were pouring in from the surrounding country, and the general impression prevailed that sanguinary and horrible scenes were to be enacted when darkness again settled over the city.

At about 11 o'clock last night a collision took place on Green, near the corner of Sixth street, resulting in the death of one man and the wounding of six or seven others.

From persons who were on the ground at the time, we learn that a party of Americans were moving out Green street, with the apparent intention of mischief, when they were fired upon by a body of Irishmen collected at the corner of the street.

wounded and one killed, as we have given
number much greater. Capt. Blackburn of the Continentalists, and one or two privates of his company received slight wounds. The military did not arrive until after the firing ceased, when, to fighten off rioters who might be lurking around, they fired a volley or two.

When we left the ground, at 12 o'clock, quiet prevailed in that immediate vicinity, but in other parts of the city yells and reports of fire arms were to be heard.

LATER.—ON O'Clock, A. M.—A report has just reached our office that the fighting is still going on. A dense crowd is collected at the corner of Ninth and Middle streets. Firing has been done there, and E. R. Violet, a well known iron merchant of this city, was murdered. There is no doubt about the death of this gentleman—eye-witnesses inform us that he was walking along the street with another citizen, when he was shot down. Mr. V. has been taken to his hotel a stiffened corpse. The firing came from a house on the corner of Middle and Ninth sts.

The man who it is supposed shot Mr. Violet was arrested and taken to the calaboose. A large horse pistol was found in his possession, and about two pounds of powder and ball.

He gave his name as Timothy Lydon, an Irishman.

At the corner of Broadway and Ashley streets, two men were shot down at 1 o'clock. One we understand is John Paley, lieutenant of the night police, and the other a Mr. Snyder, a coffee house keeper of the sixth ward—Snyder is dead, and Paley it is thought cannot live. Several others were badly hurt at that point. While we write at half past one o'clock, the fire-bells are tolling, and the streets are filled with excited citizens.
Police men are "rapping" in every direction.
Riot and bloodshed is in order of the night
—what the day may bring forth we dare not say.—Chicago Dem. Press, Thursday.

New York, Aug. 8.

The people of Greytown have returned to the site of the destroyed settlement, and are preparing to resume, so far as is practicable, their former occupations. The British ship of war Eggle is now at that port. It appears to be a fact that the place has been put under martial law, and the government of Greytown is to be re-established under British protection.

For telegraphic news see third page.

When we suggested that Mr. Booth
feeling, and charged us with "hounding" him.
Yet notwithstanding he thus freely resents an imputation upon himself, he exhibits no reluctance to answer the count which refused his ap-
paragraph from the Madison Republican—a paper which can know nothing of the count or its
Democrat.

fused a writ of habeas corpus on his arrest for the third time of adding Glover to escape, and for the very count thus refusing, but a few days before decided the slave law unconstitutional.
We have no doubt they will frame some hair-
that lack of courage is at the bottom of it."

show something of the same character to others.

ally to the Southern Wisconsin railroad
says that the Milwaukee and Mississippi company have large portion of the means already provided for its construction.

St. Louis Election.—In St. Louis county, Kennett's (whig) maj. over Benton is about 1800. The intelligence conjectures nine whigs and nine Demo representatives are elected to the legislature.

complimentary notice of the Madison Argus,
drawn out by recent typographical improvement, says: "The party would be certain to
nothing less certain," and thereupon adds,

FOREIGN EXTRACT.—The New York Mirror of the 5th says that large orders from England have been received to buy American stocks
on English account. The news of new deflations had rent London, but produced little change and loss of confidence.

$10,881,739 34, and the expenditures for the
$4,832,765 paid on the public debt. At this rate the administration will soon be out of money.

A Star Conclusion.—The Washington Sentinel has at length come to the opinion that the supremacy of the democratic party is in jeopardy.

fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon.
J. D. Snodgrass.

The Monroe Sentinel pays some of our neighbors a well deserved compliment. It says:

gress for a atom house, post office and U. S.
expenses, $5000 here is added.

ARRESTED.—Our sheriff Conover, arrived here on the cars yesterday morning, having in charge a man named Gaylord Blair who he arrested at Allen's Grove, Walworth county, for refusing obedience to a decree in chancery, requiring him to pay over a certain sum of money
30 years ago, in the city of New York, Mr.
Blair was appointed executor of his father's estate, and this heir claimant that she has not been paid the full amount due her, while Mr. Blair asserts that she received her share years ago.—
Blair is now in jail, and his counsel, Mr. Arnold,
Democrat.

LARGE RAFT.—A raft of lumber containing 800,000 feet, arrived at the lake at Alton, on Friday. About half of it consisted of fencing
and flooring which has of late been in great de-
Wisconsin.

A fellow once handed a shilling he had found in a room which he was cleaning to the owner, and he was told to "keep it for a honesty."
found a valuable thing, and he said he had, but

GOOD SCHOLARSHIP ON THE OTHER SIDE.
in London, similar in character to the one of Schuy-
Forged check warrants to the extent of £100,000 have been detected, upon which may have been
mercantile houses have failed in consequence.

enough to be true, though it probably is not.
Rev. Dr. Hawks, it is said, was about time elected bishop of Rhode Island, but he declined
the negro salary assigned to the office. His Rhode Island friends reminded him of a promise made in the scriptures—that, "Go would
seen a promise to feed young Hawks.

an woman was killed in broad daylight by an
miles of Tuscola county, sometime last week.

to bring in some venison which an Indian had
prise.

WATERFALLS.—The following is the amount
Waterfalls during the first 10 days of July just passed:

10,360 bus. oats, 6,111 bus. corn, 415 bus. wheat, 45 bus. rye, 5900 cwt. of lumber, 60-bbls.
high wines, 4,000 lbs. paper, 10 hides, 6 plows, 4 scarpers, 1 car load and 1 bx. earthen ware, 68 sacks and 4 bbls. flour. Also many other things too numerous to particularize.

A SEXLESS WILL.—The following is the copy of a will made by a man who chose to be his own lawyer:

"This is the last will and testament of me, John Thomas. I give all my things to my relatives, to be divided amongst them the best way they can.

N. B.—If anybody kicks up a row, or makes any fuss about it, he isn't to have anything."

COTTAGE DAYS.

Far in a deep and shaded vale,
Where a streamlet flowed clear,
Stands the old cottage of my boy, Wrapt in a thousand memories.

A thousand memories of the day,
Of dreamy and untroubled ease,
When I was young, and walked in health,
And lope among the hills and trees.

How often on the evening breeze,
When the moon shone full and clear,
The floor is strewn with "washed linen,"
And none the squire's wife and heir.

Yet still, far from the bustling street,
Of the great city's throng and din,
My fancy flies, like a bird of prey,
To the old place, and all that was.

How often on the evening breeze,
When the moon shone full and clear,
And none the squire's wife and heir.

Yet still, far from the bustling street,
Of the great city's throng and din,
My fancy flies, like a bird of prey,
To the old place, and all that was.

A Leaf from the Paris Register.

I had once a long search to make among the register books of Chislehurst Parish. It extended over many years, and kept me pining, day after
day, over the dusty pages in the vestry room.
Abraham Steadman, the clerk—whom we all
following passage in his life:

passed into strange hands.

not believe in ghosts. If any man ought to have seen ghosts, I ought; for I may say, without any offence to my kind friends of to-day, that all my trust and oldest friends are gone to
churchyard where most of my friends lie or even
into the church if I had occasion.

many years ago it is now, but it was not very long after I was made clerk—the rector (that
that there would be no one to ring the bells.
the bells; for I could ring them pretty well, and
a lonely place. He was a much older man than
I was, and I knew he was glad of my society.
We used to have a little fire up in the bell-tower, and make toast and posset an hour or two after midnight. But this time the sexton was ill,
and I promised the rector at once that I would ring
the bells; and so it was agreed that I should.

because I knew that he was timid and a little superstitious; but, for myself, I did not mind
at all going there alone. At exactly half past eleven,
on that Christmas eve, I took all the church
keys, and started from my house to fulfill my
the gales. I could not see any one in the street;
but as I left my door I fancied that I heard footsteps a little way behind me. I should not have
minute or two. When I bade them a merry Christmas, I had forgotten about the footsteps.
It was striking the three-quarters as I passed
ter that I caught a sound like the footsteps again.
a little way, for I began to think that I was be-
in following a poor man like me, night after
old ditty.

Now, though I had resolved to banish all
thought of the supposed footsteps from my mind, I could not help turning half round as I stood
with the great key in the lock, and looking
distinctly, as I believed, the dark head of a man peering at me over the top of one of the tombstones. I stood in the shadow of the church
porch, so that it would be difficult for any one
passing through the church-yard, and indeed,
as you know, no one would have occasion to pass
church, like myself. I hesitated for a moment, and then walked briskly towards it; but
near; nor could I hear any movement. A little further was another tomb-stone, somewhat higher and with a carved top, and I tried to per-
behind the other stone which had deceived me.
ond tomb-stone exactly in a line with the first,
sight; but it would not do to go back, for it

the vestry room, and I kept a tinder box and
and at last to find the right one. I was not a man of weak nerve; but a strange sensation came over me as
latch for the key. The air of the church was close, and had a faint smell of mouldering leather
such as you smell in some libraries. I believe it made me feel faint; for just then, I had so strong a tingling in my ears that I seemed to hear the bells already beginning to peal forth
the moment, for I knew that I had seen the sex-
not rise, unless he had got the key from me.
think the tomb-stone still more worthy of be-
door, I flung myself into the vestry room.

knew kept them on the second shelf from the top, in the closet just behind where the plan
to have a little quarrel about her throwing my things
out of the closet. This time I found that she
things at the bottom of the closet, which took
some time. When I found them I struck a
of the aisle, and his face reflected the fire at every pull, and looked quite livid as he shook out strongly and faded away again. I mention this because I have thought of it since, and believe it had something to do with what befell me that night. I lit my candle and shut it up
church after dark.

holding in the other my tinder and light, I went up the steps, and again into the dark side aisle.
Just at that moment, and as I was shutting the vestry room door, I suddenly felt a heavy hand laid upon my arm. I started and cried, "who's there?" The lantern fell, so that the light went out. "Nobody answered; but
some one immediately held me from behind, trying to keep back my arms with extraordinary strength. I was not a weak man, although I am short; but I struggled long to get round and face my enemy, and just as I was getting
a little more free, another one came to his assistance. I called aloud for help, but they stuffed my mouth with something—swore if I called they would shoot me through the head. Upon
while they lighted a candle they had with them.

[Concluded Monday.]

More Bloomsbury.—Through the politeness
of P. Colwell, esq., express agent, who arrived from St. Louis last night at 10 o'clock, we are furnished with the Intelligence of Wednesday
morning, from which we obtain the following particulars of a second riot Tuesday night:

train, left St. Louis at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, the fighting had again ceased, but the most
intense excitement prevailed, and more serious
confrontations were expected to occur last night,
than had previously taken place.

Twenty were reported killed during Tuesday
night. The Irish were pouring in from the sur-
over the city.

At about 11 o'clock last night a collision took place on Green, near the corner of Sixth street, between a party of Americans and Irishmen,
resulting in the death of one man and the wounding of six or seven others.

moving out Green street, with the apparent in-
the street.

number much greater. Capt. Blackburn of the Continentalists, and one or two privates of his com-
fighten off rioters who might be lurking around,
they fired a volley or two.

prevailed in that immediate vicinity, but in other
were to be heard.

LATER.—ON TUESDAY, A. M.—A report has just reached our office that the fighting is still going on. A dense crowd is collected at the corner of Ninth and Middle streets. Firing has
iron merchant of this city, was murdered. There
eye-witnesses inform us that he was walking
along the street with another citizen, when he
a house on the corner of Middle and Ninth sts.

large horse pistol was found in his possession,
and about two pounds of powder and ball.

man.

At the corner of Broadway and Ashley streets,
two men were shot down at 1 o'clock. One we understand is John Paley, lieutenant of the night po-
keeper of the sixth ward—Snyder is dead, and Paley it is thought cannot live. Several others were badly hurt at that point. While we write
at half past one o'clock, the fire-bells are tolling,
and the streets are filled with excited citizens.
Police men are "rapping" in every direction.
Riot and bloodshed is in order of the night

New York, Aug. 8.

The people of Greytown have returned to the site of the destroyed settlement, and are pre-
former occupations. The British ship of war
fact that the place has been put under martial law, and the government of Greytown is to be re-established under British protection.

For telegraphic news see third page.

When we suggested that Mr. Booth
resented the imputation with a good deal of
feeling, and charged us with "hounding" him.
Yet notwithstanding he thus freely resents an imputation upon himself, he exhibits no reluctance to answer the count which refused his ap-
quotes with evident approbation the following
paragraph from the Madison Republican—a paper which can know nothing of the count or its
Democrat.

"We are sorry to say that Mr. Booth was refused a writ of habeas corpus on his arrest for
for the very count thus refusing, but a few days before decided the slave law unconstitutional.
We have no doubt they will frame some hair-
that lack of courage is at the bottom of it."

Mr. Booth may be sincere in the belief that
the state are suffering in his person, and we are
show something of the same character to others.

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in an incidentally to the Southern Wisconsin railroad
says that the Milwaukee and Mississippi company have large portion of the means already
provided for its construction.

St. Louis Election.—In St. Louis county,
Kennett's (whig) maj. over Benton is about
and nine Demo representatives are elected to the legislature.

In a "Fix." The Grant County Herald, in a complimentary notice of the Madison Argus,
drawn out by recent typographical improvement, says: "The party would be certain to
nothing less certain," and thereupon adds,
"success to the Argus, politics and all." It strikes us either from the dilemma is a bad

ror of the 5th says that large orders from England have been received to buy American stocks
on English account. The news of new deflations had reached London, but produced little
change and loss of confidence.

$10,881,739 34, and the expenditures for the
$4,832,765 paid on the public debt. At this rate the administration will soon be out of money.

A Star Conclusion.—The Washington Sentinel has at length come to the opinion that the supremacy of the democratic party is in jeopardy.

Benjamin H. Smith (whig) is reported
fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon.
J. D. Snodgrass.

neighbors a well deserved compliment. It says:

The appropriation of $50,000 by congress for a atom house, post office and U. S.
expenses, $5000 here is added.

here on the cars yesterday morning, having in
refusing obedience to a decree in chancery, re-
to his sister. It appears that between 20 and 30 years ago, in the city of New York, Mr.
Blair was appointed executor of his father's estate, and this heir claimant that she has not been
asserts that she received her share years ago.
Blair is now in jail, and his counsel, Mr. Arnold,
Democrat.

LARGE RAFT.—A raft of lumber containing 800,000 feet, arrived at the lake at Alton, on Friday. About half of it consisted of fencing
and flooring which has of late been in great demand. It was floated from Appleton Falls, Wisconsin.

A fellow once handed a shilling he had found
in a room which he was cleaning to the owner,

GOOD SCHOLARSHIP ON THE TIE SINCE.
—A great mercantile fraud has been discovered
in London, similar in character to the one of Schuy-
have been detected, upon which may have been
mercantile houses have failed in consequence.

enough to be true, though it probably is not.
Rev. Dr. Hawkes, it is said, was about time elected bishop of Rhode Island, but he declined
the appointment, the ground for refusal being the negro salary assigned to the Rev. Dr. His Rhode Island friends reminded him of a promise
made in the scriptures—that, "Go would
seen a promise to feed young Hawks.

She had gone out from camp some distance
to bring in some venison which an Indian had
the attention of the lynx it did not leave her until it had destroyed her life.—Saginaw Enterprise.

WATERFALLS.—The following is the amount
of produce and merchandise shipped from Waterfalls during the first 10 days of July just
passed:

10,360 bus. oats, 6,111 bus. corn, 415 bus. wheat, 45 bus. rye, 5900 cwt. of lumber, 60-bbls.
plows, 4 scarpers, 1 car load and 1 bx. earthen ware, 68 sacks and 4 bbls. flour. Also many other things too numerous to particularize.

lawyer:

"This is the last will and testament of me, John Thomas. I give all my things to my rela-
they can.

N. B.—If anybody kicks up a row, or makes

HEALTH OF CHICAGO.—The board of health, report 28 deaths at Chicago on Monday, of which 18 were from cholera. The Tribune says that travel to and from that city is on the increase again and public health improving.

DEATH OF A RAILROAD CONTRACTOR.—Mr. D. Camp, of the firm of Camp & Gibbons, contractors on the Lake Shore railroad, died at Waukegan on Monday afternoon of cholera. The deceased was one of the oldest settlers of Cleveland, and his remains were forwarded thither on Tuesday by the steamer Buckeye State.

Holden, Kemp & Co. of Janesville, are among the most enterprising dealers in the state; they deal extensively and keep a large assortment of first quality of goods in their line. They sell reasonably and the people of Green county going to Janesville had better give them a call. Their advertisements will be found in to-day's paper.

The Alta California states that as a heavily loaded cart was recently passing down Jackson street, in San Francisco, the street plank gave way, and the cart disappeared suddenly into the depths below. Upon examination, it was found that the supporters of the plank beneath had been bored through in many places by some mischievous individuals, who had obtained access there by aid of boats. The Alta California thinks there is no doubt that the perpetrators of the plot had designed to rob the specie cart, on its way to the steamer, and for this purpose had weakened the supports, intending, when the cart fell through, to be prepared with a conveyance beneath, and seizing their booty, to decamp with all possible speed.

A little over eighteen months since, the city of New York sold a block of land on 13th Avenue for $160,000; now they propose to buy it back for "the people" for $320,000, with 6 percent interest from June 20th, 1851. What do "the people" think of such management. There is a pretty little fortune hid in that menial bag for somebody. We hope it will be shook out just to gratify public curiosity.

A bachelor friend of ours passing up street yesterday picked up a thimble. He stood for a moment meditating on the probable owner, when pressing it to his lips, he said:

Our friend finished.

Holden, Kemp & Co. of Janesville, are among the most enterprising dealers in the state; they deal extensively and keep a large assortment of first quality of goods in their line. They sell reasonably and the people of Green county going to Janesville had better give them a call. Their advertisements will be found in to-day's paper.

The Alta California states that as a heavily loaded cart was recently passing down Jackson street, in San Francisco, the street plank gave way, and the cart disappeared suddenly into the depths below. Upon examination, it was found that the supporters of the plank beneath had been bored through in many places by some mischievous individuals, who had obtained access there by aid of boats. The Alta California thinks there is no doubt that the perpetrators of the plot had designed to rob the specie cart, on its way to the steamer, and for this purpose had weakened the supports, intending, when the cart fell through, to be prepared with a conveyance beneath, and seizing their booty, to decamp with all possible speed.

A little over eighteen months since, the city of New York sold a block of land on 13th Avenue for $160,000; now they propose to buy it back for "the people" for $320,000, with 6 percent interest from June 20th, 1851. What do "the people" think of such management. There is a pretty little fortune hid in that menial bag for somebody. We hope it will be shook out just to gratify public curiosity.

A bachelor friend of ours passing up street yesterday picked up a thimble. He stood for a moment meditating on the probable owner, when pressing it to his lips, he said:

Our friend finished.

WRAPPING TWINE.—Linen and cotton. Also,

Far in a deep and shaded vale,
Where a wild streamlet flows clear, Lies the old cottage of my boy,
Which I was wont to call my dear.

A thousand memories of the day,
Of dreamy hours and healthful When I was young and walked in
And hope among the hills and trees.

And when the evening comes,
And the stars are twinkling clear, Within the old room of my boy,
The floor is strewn with sweet leaves.

Yet still, from the throng and clasp Of the great city's thronging streets,
My fancy flies, like a bird of prey,
To the old room of my boy.

To the old room of my boy,
Just fresh as when the flame first lit,
And the light of early life,
And the wild gleam of laughing eyes.

Or, musing 'neath the lattice pane,
Of the old room of my boy,
I hear the distant tinkling rime,
The lowing of well-kept kine.

Then comes our Florian, hazel-eyed,
With spirit-like loveliness and grace,
To bless me with his converse sweet,
And perfect his inebriated face.

And arm in arm, above the lawn, Between old daisy fields and trees, We fondly roam till thick night shades
Proclaim the long day's tranquil close.

O happy days, when life was given In gentle and Arcadian strain;
When I was meek contentment's guest,
And felt her kindly smothering balm.

When for my thirst she drew her wine,
Fresh from the well of sparkling springs,
And found me in the old room of my boy, Green orchard's and sunlit offerings.

When all the dewy flower-scented Scented breeze with a voiceless prayer,
And from the woody uplands rose,
The world's sweet praise every where.

Thus on my spirit visions throng,
Sweet memories of my boy's old room, Till in the dense twilight of my life,
I feel a rural blessedness.

A Leaf from the Paris Register.

I had once a long search to make among the
over many years, and kept me poring, day after
day, over the musty pages in the vestry room.
Abraham Steadman, the clerk—whom we all
cheese and beer over the fire, he told me the following passage in his life:

I have lived in the parish, said he, going on now for seven years. When I think of past times, my present friends in the place seem strangers to me. Our old acquaintances die off by one, and new ones come into their places so gradually, that we scarcely miss them; but one
passed into strange hands.

not believe in ghosts. If any man ought to have seen ghosts, I ought; for I may say, without any offence to my kind friends of to-day, that all my trust and oldest friends are gone to
the ghost-land; and I am sure they would pay me a visit if they could. Besides, I never failed to walk about an old house in the dark at mid-
churchyard where most of my friends lie or even
into the church if I had occasion.

many years ago it is now, but it was not very long after I was made clerk—the rector (that was poor Mr. Godly) told me he was in a little perplexity about the sexton's being ill, seeing
that there would be no one to ring the bells.

a lonely place. He was a much older man than
I was, and I knew he was glad of my society.
We used to have a little fire up in the bell-tower, and make toast and posset an hour or two after midnight. But this time the sexton was ill, and I promised the rector at once that I would ring the bells; and so it was agreed that I should.

because I knew that he was timid and a little superstitious; but, for myself, I did not mind at all going there alone. At exactly half past eleven,
and several of our old lamps had either dipped
the gusts. I could not see any one in the street;
but as I left my door I fancied that I heard footsteps a little way behind me. I should not have
minute or two. When I bade them a merry Christmas, I had forgotten about the footsteps.
It was striking the three-quarters as I passed over the stile into the churchyard; and just as I came to the stile I saw the footsteps again.
I looked back and waited awhile; but I could
a little way, for I began to think that I was be-
till then, and so I did not doubt it was some superstitious feeling about my task that was at the
the pathway between the grave-stones, humming an old ditty.

Now, though I had resolved to baffle all thought of the supposed footsteps from my mind, I could not help turning half round as I stood
with the great key in the lock, and looking
frightened at then, for at about thirty yards I saw distinctly, as I believed, the dark head of a man peeping at me over the top of one of the tomb-
stones. I stood in the shadow of the church
porch, so that it would be difficult for any one
to church, like myself. I hesitated for a moment, and then walked briskly towards it; but
the head seemed to withdraw itself immediately and disappear. What was so strange, I walked round the very stone, and could see no one near; nor could I hear any movement. A little further was another tomb-stone, somewhat higher and with a carved top, and I tried to convince myself that it was this top coming close behind the other stone which had deceived me.
in the church porch, I could not bring the second tomb-stone exactly in a line with the first,
to my eye. I felt a little uneasy at this strange fancy; but it would not do to go back, for it

the vestry room, and I kept a tinder box and
matches there to light it. I had to grope about for the key hole of the heavy iron-plated door, and again to fumble among my bunch of keys to find the right one. I am not a man of weak nerve; but a strange sensation came over me as I stood there in the dark, feeling through all the bunch for the key. The air of the church was
such as you smell in some libraries. I believe it made me feel faint, for just then, I had so strong a tingling in my ears that I seemed to hear the bells already beginning to peal forth in the bell-tower. I listened and fancied that I could hear distinctly that confused jingle which
precedes a full peal. The fancy terrified me for the moment, for I knew that I had seen the sexton ill in bed that day, and even that he could not be there, unless he had got the key from me.
But when this notion had passed I set it down
think the tomb-stone affair no more worthy of thought than this. So I turned the great key with both hands; and opening the great fire proof door, I let myself into the vestry room.

When I was once in there I knew where to find my lantern and tinder box in a moment. I kept them on the second shelf from the top of the parish estate at East Haydocke hung up from the wall. But the poor owner kept his keys and brushes there also, and we used to be woe-begotten her, throwing my things out of place sometimes. This time I found that she had scattered my matches, and I had to stoop down and feel about for them among the things at the bottom of the closet, which took some time. When I found them I struck a light and saw the tinder with my breath. I saw the sexton so exactly the same thing one night as I stood in the dark, right at the end of the aisle, and his face reflected the fire at every puff, and looked quite livelier as it shone out strongly and faded away again. I mention this because I have thought it since, and believe it had something to do with what befel me
horn, very dirty and dusty with lying in the
church after dark.

holding wood under the other arm I lit my fire with it, I went up the steps again into the dark side aisle. Just at that moment, and as I was shutting the vestry room door, I suddenly
and cried, "who's there?" The lantern fell, but that the light went out. Nobody answered; but some one immediately held me from behind,
trying to keep back my arms with extraordinary strength. I was not a weak man, although
I am short; but I struggled long to get round
and face my enemy, and just as I was getting a little more free, another one came to my assistance. I called aloud for help, but they stood my mouth with something—swore if I called they would shoot me through the head. Upon

[Concluded Monday.]

More Bloodshed.—Through the politeness of P. Colwell, esq., express agent, who arrived from St. Louis last night at 10 o'clock, we are furnished with the Intelligence of Wednesday morning, from which we obtain the following particulars of a second riot Tuesday night:

train, left St. Louis at 7 o'clock yesterday morning the fighting had again ceased, but the most intense excitement prevailed, and more serious encounters were expected to occur last night, than had previously taken place.

Twenty were reported killed during Tuesday night. The Irish were pointing in from the surrounding country, and the general impression
over the city.

place on Green, near the corner of Sixth street;
between a party of Americans and Irishmen,
resulting in the death of one man and the wounding of six or seven others.

moving out Green street, with the apparent in-
the street.

number much greater. Capt. Blackburn of the Continentalists, and one or two privates of his com-
not arrive until after the firing ceased, when, to fight off rioters who might be lurking around, they fired a volley or two.

prevailed in that immediate vicinity, but in other parts of the city yells and reports of fire arms
were to be heard.

LATER.—ONE O'CLOCK, A. M.—A report has just reached our office that the fighting is still going on. A dense crowd is collected at the corner of Ninth and Biddle streets. Firing has been done there, and E. R. Violet, a well known iron merchant of this city, was murdered. There
eye-witnesses inform us that he was walking
along the street with another citizen, when he
a house on the corner of Biddle and Ninth sts.

large horse pistol was found in his possession,
and about two pounds of powder and ball.

man.

At the corner of Broadway and Ashley streets,
two men were shot down at 1 o'clock. One we understand is John Foley, lieutenant of the night police, and the other a Mr. Snyder, a coffee house keeper of the sixth ward—Snyder is dead, and Foley it is thought cannot live. Several others were badly hurt at that point. We know not what this thing is to end. While we write at half past one o'clock, the fire-bells are tolling, and the streets are filled with excited citizens.
Police-men are "rapping" in every direction.
Riot and bloodshed is the order of the night
—what the day may bring forth we dare not

New York, Aug. 8.

The people of Greytown have returned to the site of the destroyed settlement, and are pre-
former occupations. The British ship of war Eglington is now at that port. It appears to be a fact that the place has been under martial law, and the government of Greytown is to be re-established under British protection.

For telegraphic news see third page.

When we suggested that Mr. Booth
might have desired the interposition of the su-
resented the imputation with a good deal of feeling, and charged us with "howling" him.
Yet notwithstanding he thus freely resents an imputation upon himself, he exhibits no reluctance to answer the court which, refused his application. He lets nothing in the way of a dis-
quotes with evident approbation the following
paragraph from the Hartford Republican—a paper which can know nothing of the court or its
Democrat.

"We are sorry to say that Mr. Booth was refused a writ of habeas corpus on his arrest for the
have no doubt they will frame some hair-
that lack of courage is at the bottom of it."

Mr. Booth may be sincere in the belief that
the state are suffering in his person, and we are
himself and confidence in his own integrity is to record something of the same character to others.

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in an incident-tal allusion to the Southern Wisconsin railroad says that the Milwaukee and Mississippi company have, large portion of the means already provided for its construction.

St. Louis Election.—In St. Louis county,
Kenneth's (whig) maj. over Benton is about 1800. The Whig electioneers conjecture nine whig and nine Benton representatives are elected to the legislature.

In a "Fix."—The Grant County Herald, in a
complimentary notice of the Madison Argus, drawn out by a recent typographical improvement, says: "The party would be certain to
nothing less certain;" and thereupon adds,
"success to the Argus, politics and all." It strikes us either from the dilemma is a bad

ror of the 5th says that large orders from England have been received to buy American stocks on English account. The news of new defecations had reached London, but produced little
change and loss of confidence.

for the quarter ending the 30th of June were $10,884,739 85, and the expenditures for the
$8,822,765 paid on the public debt. At this rate the administration will soon be out of money.

A SAGE CONCLUSION.—The Washington Sentinel has at length come to the opinion that the supremacy of the democratic party is in jeopardy.

fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon.
J. M. Snelgrove.

The Monroe Sentinel pays some of our neighbors a well deserved compliment. It says:

The appropriation of $50,000 by congress for a town house, post office and U. S. court rooms, for a building 60 by 15 feet, and 48 feet from the foundation. For contingent expenses, $5000 here is added.

here on the cars yesterday morning, having in charge a man named Gaylord Blair whom he arrested at Allen's Gap, Walworth county, for refusing obedience to decree in chancery, re-
to his sister. It appears that between 20 and 30 years ago, in the city of New York, Mr.
Blair was appointed executor of his father's estate, and this heir claimant she has not been
asserts that he received his share years ago.
Blair is now in jail, and his counsel, Mr. Arnold,
Democrat.

LARGE RAFT.—A raft of lumber containing 600,000 feet, arrived at the lake at Alton, on Friday. About half of it consisted of fencing and flooring which has of late been in great demand. It was floated from Appewa Falls, Wisconsin.

A fellow once landed a skiff upon a raft in a room which he was cleaning the owner, and he was told to "keep it for his honesty."

—A great mercantile fraud has been discovered
in London, similar in character to that of Schuyler in New York, and to about the same amount.
Forged dock warrants to the extent of £100,000 have been detected, upon which many have been
mercantile houses have failed in consequence.

enough to be true, though it probably is not:
Rev. Dr. Hawks, it is said, was some time elected bishop of Rhode Island, but he declined
Rhode Island friends reminded him of a promise made in the scriptures, that, "if he would feed the young ravens." The doctor replied
seen a promise to feed young Hawks.

KILLED BY A LYNX.—We learn that an Indian woman was killed in broad daylight by an animal known as the lynx, within three or four miles of Tuscola county, sometime last week.

to bring in some venison which an Indian had
on her back, and though she threw the venison
the attention of the lynx it did not leave her until it had destroyed her life.—Saginaw Enterprise.

of produce and merchandise shipped from
passed:

19,360 lbs. oats, 6,414 lbs. corn, 415 lbs.
high wines, 4,000 lbs. paper rags, 16 hides, 6 pows, 4 scrapers, 1 car load and 1 bx. earthen ware, 68 sacks and 4 bbls. flour. Also many other things too numerous to particularize.

lawyer:

"This is the last will and testament of me, John Thomas. I give all my things to my relations, to be divided amongst them the best way
they can.

N. B.—If anybody kicks up a row; or makes
Signed by me. JOHN THOMAS.
